Build a Brand Knowledge Base That Feeds Your Entity Home and Third-Party Mentions

From Olesia Korobka, founder of WhiteLobby · Unscripted SEO, recorded February 2025

Objective

One written knowledge base about your company, built from what you've already recorded and published, with every public description drawn from it: the about page, the profiles you control, and the third-party mentions you earn where your audience actually is. Google, LLMs and buyers meet the same plain facts.

Key Steps

1. Pull what you've already said into one place. Transcribe your videos, podcasts and talks (Olesia uses tools like NotebookLM and LangChain) and connect them into one database. Add decks, support docs and your best pages.
2. Distill the facts, tied to what you sell. Who you are, what you do, for whom, when and how you started, who runs it. Keep only what serves the business goals. Cut the platitudes.
3. Rewrite the entity home from it. The about page (or the home page) states the facts in full sentences. B2B with no traffic goal still needs it: investors and partners check you're legit.
4. Say it in plain text, not only in schema. AI crawlers organize their own knowledge with schema but don't read yours. Add an llms.txt file.
5. Make every claim checkable. If you claim good support, link the support page. Walk each claim to its proof page.
6. Find where your audience actually talks. iGaming needs more mentions and links. Technical niches get a few sources, Reddit, one or two forums and YouTube. List them by name.
7. Earn correct mentions there, from the knowledge base. Same facts in every profile, guest post, interview, forum answer and video description. Mentions plus social profiles can build a knowledge panel.
8. Generate new assets from the base, only the ones that sell. Site, profiles, posts, podcasts, videos, tutorials. No generic blog posts. Update the base first when a fact changes. (inferred order)

Cautionary Notes

- Don't drop the website. For SEO it's vital, and a small company still needs a good landing page.
- Serving AI tools from an API with no website is Olesia's prediction, not a working method yet.
- In restricted niches you can't publish everywhere. Go where the audience is.
- Don't score mentions by DR alone. Ask whether the mention is read and correct.
- No timelines or numbers were given. This is one practitioner's method.

Tips for Efficiency

- Start from your own recordings: facts in your own words, fast. (inferred)
- Keep a pasteable facts block: name, one-liner, founding, team, location, services. (inferred)
- Recheck what ChatGPT, Perplexity and Google say after each round of mentions. (inferred)
- Markup side of a company panel: see the SEO Arcade knowledge panel SOP for businesses.
